

Greater Good

MAGAZINE OF THE GREATER GOOD SCIENCE CENTER AT UC BERKELEY

Spring 2008

Volume IV, Issue 4

The vast majority of people wake up on a typical morning and live a violence-free day.

44

LET'S PLAY!

14 Can We Play?

Play is essential to positive human development, but kids are playing less and less, says psychologist David Elkind. What can we do to build a new culture of play?

18 Games Animals Play

Animal play is serious business, say scientists Lee Alan Dugatkin and Sarina Rodrigues.

20 Confessions of an Anxious Parent

Are today's parents afraid to let their kids play? Jill Suttie tries to strike a balance between safety, freedom, and success.

23 The Wild Ones

Adults have always tried to control children's play. But Howard P. Chudacoff argues that the kids will always win.

24 Playing the Blame Game

Video games stand accused of causing obesity, violence, and lousy grades. But new research paints a surprisingly complicated picture, reports Jeremy Adam Smith.

28 With Friends Like These...

Marjorie Taylor and Alison B. Shawber explain what imaginary friends can reveal about the kids who create them.

31 You're It!

Play isn't just for kids, reports Karen Solomon.

FEATURES

32 The Forgiveness Instinct

To understand the human potential for peace, we have to learn three simple truths about forgiveness and revenge.

By Michael E. McCullough

36 The Postpartum Brain

New research casts light on the troubling thoughts many new mothers experience.

By Anna J. Abramson

"Please don't eat my daddy."

28

2 from the editors

3 letters to the editors

4 in brief

Altruism and ET

The moral lives of babies

Can you be too happy?

And more...

COLUMNS

Brain Teaser: Are liberals' and conservatives' brains different?

Body Language: Was Roger Clemens lying?

Social Intelligence: Daniel Goleman on empathy & apathy

12 Q&A

Playing Doctor

An interview with Patch Adams

40 in review

Print: New books look at how the Internet unites and divides us; plus, books on happiness, forgiveness, philanthropy, and more.

Culture: Why the time is right to celebrate female superheroes.

44 an idea for the greater good

An anthropologist shows that war is not universal.

45 resources for the greater good